Prof. Liat Kozma
Middle East History
The Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Prof. Liat Kozma is a senior lecturer at the Department of Islamic and Middle East Studies at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and the Harry Friedenwald Chair in History of Medicine. She received her Ph.D. from the joint program in history and Middle Eastern Studies at New York University. She is the current director of the Nehemia Levtzion Center for Islamic Studies at the Hebrew University and a co-editor, with On Barak and Avner Wishnitzer, of the Social History Workshop blog on Haaretz website. She is the author of Policing Egyptian Women: Sex, Law and Medicine in Egypt 1850-1882 (Syracuse University Press, 2011) and Global Women, Colonial Ports: Regulated Prostitution in the Interwar Middle East (SUNY press, 2017). She is also the co-editor, with Cyrus Schayegh and Avner Wishnitzer of A Global Middle East: Mobility, Materiality and Culture in the Modern Age, 1880-1940 (IB Tauris, 2014); and co-editor with Magaly Rodriguez and Davide Rodogno of The League of Nations’ Work on Social Issues (UN Press, 2016). In Hebrew, she is the author of Women Writing History: Feminism and Social Change in Morocco (The Dayan Center, 2003), and the co-editor, with Israel Gershoni and Orit Bashkin of Sculpturing Culture in Egypt: Planning, National Identity and Social Change in Egypt, 1890-1939 (Ramot, 2000); the editor of Facing the Sharʿia Court: Transformations in the Status of Muslim Women in Israel and the Middle East (Ressling, 2011), and the co-editor, with Heba Yazbak, of Personal Status and Gender: Muslim Women in Israel (Pardes, 2017). Her articles examine Moroccan feminism, sexology in translation in the modern Middle East, the history of drug traffic in Egypt and beyond, and the history of medical research in the region.
